

Debut in Research Prize

Silvia Cereda

Università di Milano Bicocca – Department of Material Science

“Atomic-scale modeling of surface processes relevant for Si thin-film growth”

By applying an original methodology the details and the control perspectives of the difficult chemistry involved in the deposition of amorphous and nanocrystalline silicon materials are thoroughly examined. The results will be useful in the development of multiscale design of solar cells.