

Eni, la storia di un'impresa

Passato, presente e futuro del cane a sei zampe

(Eni, the story of an enterprise. Past, present and future of the six-legged dog)

Vittorio Mincato

Chief Executive Officer
from 1999 to 2005.

Due to his extensive experience in administration, developed first in Lanerossi and then in Eni, he is the man chosen by Franco Reviglio to lead the company in the years following privatisation. These were complex years, with oil price at historical lows. Nonetheless, on Eni's agenda there is a 50% increase in production, the inauguration of the Algerian pipeline and the completion of corporate rationalisation, achieved thanks to a rigorous managerial style that managed to limit the interference of politics.
